"Millions of financially responsible people are excluded from opportunity – not because they are untrustworthy, but because traditional systems were never built for them."

Problem Statement

Many underbanked and low-income individuals struggle to access financial opportunities such as starter credit products, rental assistance, or security deposit support because traditional systems rely heavily on centralized data collection, traditional credit history, and extensive personal documentation.

Traditional credit systems focus heavily on borrowing history and debt usage, creating barriers for gig workers, freelancers, immigrants, and individuals with limited financial history who may still consistently pay rent, utilities, and recurring bills on time. These systems also often require users to repeatedly share sensitive personal information, raising

Solution

Fincap Score is a privacy-preserving financial onboarding and verification platform that helps underserved individuals securely demonstrate financial credibility without relying solely on traditional credit systems.

Our platform uses a Web3-powered verification and trust platform. approach to reduce onboarding barriers while improving trust, privacy, and accessibility for underserved users.

The FinCap Score Model

Unlike traditional credit systems that focus primarily on debt utilization and borrowing history, FinCap Score evaluates financial behavior through four core pillars designed to better reflect real-world financial responsibility.

Privacy and Security

- Privacy-first verification model
- Reduced exposure of raw documents
- Fraud and anomaly detection support
